The Seeing in the Dark Internet Telescope (SIDIT)

The Seeing in the Dark Internet Telescope—located at New Mexico Skies, a high-altitude site in the Sacramento Mountains near Cloudcroft NM—imaged the night sky free of charge for thousands of students, from September 2007 through December 2008. Funded by ClockDrive Productions with a grant from the National Science Foundation, the telescope ended operations on 31 December 2008.
