Altruism Survey

Instructions: Interview your peers about the type of service they take on.

- In the first column, note what it is they do.
- In the second, identify what the activity is linked to; for example, it might be school community service, a volunteer activity associated with their religious practice, etc.
- In the third column, note what motivates them to do this activity.
- In the fourth column, note what service means to each person (how it fulfills them, how it makes them feel, etc.).

If someone is not engaged in a service activity, ask him or her what he or she might want to do and then continue the activity as described above.
