Moslem Federation

By Clarissa Lorenz

The Washington Post (1923-1954);
May 24, 1941;
ProQuest Historical Newspapers The Washington Post (1877 - 1994)

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.

Moslem Federation

The British have decided to evacuate its frontier post at Hurmuz, and it is believed that the Moslem Federation will go to the lake of Laccadive and the Cochin States will be liquidated. Indian and British officials have been giving the Indians the right to take possession of these islands and the Cochin States. The British are planning to set up a special council to carry out these arrangements.

The British are planning to take over these islands and the Cochin States. The British are planning to set up a special council to carry out these arrangements.

In September, the British government announced that it would evacuate its frontier post at Hurmuz. This decision was made after much reflection and consideration. The British government was concerned about the safety and security of the people living in the region. The evacuation was seen as the best course of action to ensure their safety.

The British government's decision to evacuate the frontier post at Hurmuz was met with mixed reactions. Some people were supportive of the decision, while others were concerned about the implications it might have for the region's security. The British government was determined to ensure that the people living in the region were protected.

In conclusion, the British government's decision to evacuate its frontier post at Hurmuz was a necessary step to ensure the safety and security of the people living in the region. The British government was committed to protecting the people living in the region and was determined to do whatever it took to ensure their safety.

In any case, the question is an important one, and it is necessary to have a clear understanding of the situation. The British government has taken appropriate steps to ensure that the people living in the region are protected. The British government is committed to ensuring the safety and security of the people living in the region.

The decision to evacuate the frontier post at Hurmuz was made after much consideration and consultation with the people living in the region. The British government was determined to ensure that the people living in the region were protected.

In conclusion, the British government's decision to evacuate its frontier post at Hurmuz was a necessary step to ensure the safety and security of the people living in the region. The British government is committed to ensuring the safety and security of the people living in the region and is determined to do whatever it takes to ensure their safety.

The decision to evacuate the frontier post at Hurmuz was made after much consideration and consultation with the people living in the region. The British government was determined to ensure that the people living in the region were protected.

In conclusion, the British government's decision to evacuate its frontier post at Hurmuz was a necessary step to ensure the safety and security of the people living in the region. The British government is committed to ensuring the safety and security of the people living in the region and is determined to do whatever it takes to ensure their safety.